words. We can trade faster, and make less fuss by your paying the prices asked or refusing to buy. If your purchase runs up handsomely, I will show you that I know how to appreciate that fact. I am not "selling out to make room for a new stock." That saying is time-honored, but hopelessly translucent. I have the new stock, and too much. The only roomy thing I have is my pocketbook, which is empty, so to speak. Now, if you want furniture, here it is, plenty of it. If you are ignorant of prices go Now, if you want furniture, here it is, plenty of it. If you are ignorant of prices go and study up. But don't worry me down with Austin prices. I know how goods in my line sell there better than you do. I make it part of my business to keep posted in all things affecting my trade, and you don't. I turn over to you your purchases in sound condition, with no charges in addition to the price, which is as low as anybody can offer. If you don't want to buy in San Marcos, I am sorry for it, but shall not pine away and die on account of it. It's a good thing for the trade to have some hard case go abroad for his supplies. The result of such a performance generally quiets the rest of the community—every merchant in San Marcos understands this. Since setting up in business here I have sold merchant in San Marcos understands this. Since setting up in business here I have sold a tremendous amount of furniture and meny articles, by far the finest ever brought into this community. I return my profound thanks for the very encouraging patronage I have received from the people of San Marcos. Their generous support has enabled me to build up a trade that is gratifying not only to myself, but to all who are ing, not only to myself, but to all who are not jealous of a fellow man's prosper'ty. The Doris Circus, San Marcos, Nov. 6. The Doris Great Inter-Ocean Show exhibited here yest rday to crowded tents. The street parade was the finest and cleanest yet seen here, and the universal satisfaction seems to be a matter of conversation to-day. Mr. Doris is, comparatily speaking, a young man, and the amount of ambition and energy displayed to please the people will make him the coming showman. His adoption of the one ring system, instead of the three rings, shows very good judgment, as it is a pleasure to visit a show such as Mr. Doris conducts, and we can recommend it to all

New England people as being first-class, morally and otherwise.

Of some of the principal features we must compliment the following artists for the admirable rendition of their part of the performance: Commencing with William Showles, America's champion bare-back rider, who, in our opinion, vanquishes such good artists an Charles Fisk, James Robinson, William Dutton and Frank Melville. We have seen them all, and none so graceful as Shoules. His execution of jumping on and off a horse at full speed is something maryelous and it is claimed that no ride can attempt the same feat as an equal. Then comes pretty-petite, Sallie Marks, whose acts are done so next, and of the finest order, eliciting applause from every-body. Miss Ella Stokes, in principal finish bare-back act, is extremely good. The Sie-grist children can well lay claim to being the finest acrobats in the world. John Patterson, George Drew and Francois Kennebel in their respective titles of Irish, Dutch and French clowns are the best and finest, keeping the longs in a continuous finest,

A large stock of Furniture, Carpets etc., intended for Kyle, has unavoidably been thrown on the San Maroes stock, which was already too heavy for the local trade. I am compelled to offer such inducements in the way of low prices as will attract buyers, who, while making bargains for themselves, will relieve me of an overload.

I will offer bargains that will be recognized as such by the very shrewdest and the very closest buyers. You are not called upon to mingle your tears with mine on account of my being in a tight place. I have pulled my business through tighter places, and will pull it through once more if the hair docsan't alip. Therefore wipe your cyes, but you are called upon to walk forward with an elastic, tread, lay your money down, take the bargain which I have to offer you; then go and tell your neighbor how I served you. Always bring the money with you, else you will be likened unto the may who presented himself at the wedding feast without a wedding garment. Money moves the world, and I regard it with great favor.
